FALL 2012

MINI COURSE
LECTURE SERIES

Access to Justice for People with Complex Communication Needs (CCN)

presented by Barbara Collier

Ms. Collier presents an overview of the communication access barriers and accommodations required by people with complex communication needs (CCNs) when accessing legal/justice services. She describes several communication support services as well as findings from a feasibility study in Canada designed to introduce communication intermediaries for people with CCN within legal/justice contexts.

A panel discussion will follow the presentation. Amy Goldman, Co-Executive Director of the Institute on Disabilities will facilitate. The panel is comprised of:

- Beverly Frantz, Criminal Justice and Sexual Health Coordinator, Institute on Disabilities at Temple University;
- Carrie Leonhart, Augmentative Communication Services Coordinator, Institute on Disabilities at Temple University;
- Wendy Lewis, Speech-Language Pathologist specializing in Augmentative and Alternative Communication (AAC), Private Practice; and
- John O'Neill, Assistant District Attorney, Family Violence and Sexual Assault Unit, Philadelphia District Attorney's Office.

Barbara Collier is Executive Director and a founding member of Augmentative Communication Community Partnerships Canada (AACPC), a non-profit organization that promotes accessibility and social justice for people who have significant communication disabilities. She is a Speech-Language Pathologist and has worked as a clinician, project manager, researcher, resource developer, educator and author.
